

Autopilot, Inc. regards information about its products, manufacturing processes, business strategy, customers, employees, contracts, financial condition and legal matters ("Confidential Information") to be proprietary and confidential. In consideration for being allowed access to Autopilot premises, the undersigned agrees to the following:

Visitor shall not disclose any Confidential Information obtained in the course of its access to Autopilot without the prior written authorization of Autopilot. Visitor shall not disclose to any third party that he/she is engaged in providing information, services and/or material or is otherwise doing business with Autopilot, and shall return to Autopilot upon its request any and all materials containing Confidential Information in whatever form that are in Visitor's possession, custody or under its control. Visitor, and his or her principle, shall be liable for any and all losses incurred by Autopilot and its customers as a result of any misappropriation of Confidential Information. Because misappropriation or improper disclosure of Confidential Information can result in substantial and irreparable injury to Autopilot, Autopilot will be entitled to injunctive relief, in addition to monetary damages, to enforce the terms of this agreement. This agreement shall be governed and construed in accordance with the laws of the state on Montana. This agreement states the entire agreement between the parties with respect to the subject matter hereto and can only be modified by a written amendment signed by both Autopilot and Visitor. The obligations set forth in this agreement shall remain in effect for a period of ten (10) years after disclosure.
